BASC HISTORY

The Bulacan State Agricultural College is an educational landmark of vital importance to the province of Bulacan. It gives everyone the opportunity to pursue higher education, which is very much needed for agricultural proficiency and for individual as well as for national development.

Serving as a community high school in Brgy. Bintog, Plaridel, Bulacan, Plaridel Community Agricultural High School was the name of Bulacan Agricultural State College upon establishment in 1952. Made later as a provincial high school, it was renamed Bulacan Provincial Agricultural High School (BPAHS). On June 20, 1953 by virtue of Republic Act No. 948, it was converted to Bulacan National Agricultural High School. Pres. Ramon Magsaysay signed Proclamation 163 on June 8, 1955, reserving around 192.5 hectares of the Buenavista Estate for BNAHS. On June 21, 1959, by virtue of Republic Act 2416, BNAHS was converted to Bulacan National Agricultural School (BuNAS).

In 1960, it was authorized to offer a two-year Associate in Agriculture program. Not long after, the school was given the leeway to offer the four-year agriculture curriculum, Bachelor of Science in Agriculture (BSA) with majors in Agronomy and Animal Husbandry. It expanded its program and offered Bachelor of Science in Agricultural Education (BSAgEd) with majors in Agronomy and Animal Husbandry.

President Diosdado Macapagal, in May 25, 1963, issued Proclamation no. 114 reserving as an additional site for the Bulacan National Agricultural School reservation an area of around 442 hectares in Angat, Bulacan.

In its existence as an agricultural school, BuNAS made substantial growth and progress in terms of instruction. The time came when the academic community and the people of Bulacan felt that the school was ready to become an agricultural college. It was a dream and a clamor as Bulacan did not have an agricultural state college yet. Aware of what an agricultural state college can do in the lives of the people and in the life of the province itself not only economically but socially and culturally as well political leader made attempts in congress to endorse the conversion. The clamor was articulated in House Bill No. 2389 filed by former Congressman Ricardo C. Silverio. On February 24, 1998, Republic Act 8548 was made into a law converting the school into Bulacan National Agricultural State College. Then, in February 19, 2004, by virtue of Republic Act 9249 it was renamed into Bulacan Agricultural State College (BASC).

At present, the College has three campuses, both of which are located at the 3rd District of Bulacan. The Main Campus is located in Brgy. Pinaod, San Ildefonso while the Institute of Agriculture Campus is located in Poblacion, San Ildefonso, Bulacan while the Agroforestry Campus was established in Brgy. Sapang Bulak, Doña Remedios Trinidad (DRT) in 2005 which is aptly called the DRT Campus.

From serving as a community agricultural high school, it has metamorphosed into a training ground of not only secondary but also tertiary, masteral and doctoral students, all of these, not only seeking for their own place in the field of agriculture and allied disciplines, but earnestly seeking for and working for self-fulfilment and progress for the Philippines.
