BASC ANNUAL REPORT 2019

Executive Summary

To produce competitive and innovative graduates imbued with a high sense of moral values and commitment to nation building with the support of our competent roster of faculty and administrators is the main thrust in sustaining the gains, and expanding competencies for sights beyond borders is the rewarding year-end finish of 2019.

Our developmental programs, trainings, workshops, conferences and enrolment in further studies have been given more emphasis this year that eventually strengthened the capabilities of our faculty as demonstrated in the increased number of them finishing masters and doctorate degrees compared to previous years not discounting those who are still doing graduate and post-graduate work. Another factor is the quality of our curricular offerings. Arrangements to revise curricular programs consistent with the Philippine Qualifications Framework (PFQ) have been initiated. The College has alos been certified under ISO 2005-

Effects of these are manifested in the continued recognition in board licensure examinations. During my stewardship, my commitment is for the College to begin its journey towards making it an Agricultural University in the future with the strengthening of the programs. Results, in terms of improving the research culture, are highlighted by the significant increases of oral and poster presentations, publications in Thomson-Reuters accredited publications, internationally-refereed journals.

A most important development is the rise in the number of faculty members engaged in research in response to the intensified campaign for collaborative works among senior and junior faculty members and with their national counterparts.

The College's reason for being is not complete without its extension services in order to help improve the quality of life of its partners in the community. Aside from the established socioeconomic and skills-building programs, the College invested in after-care assistance activities following the devastation of African Swine Fever (ASF). In coordination with external agencies, the College offered its share in the information campaign on ASF.

If our emphasis is on Science and Technology, we have not neglected the holistic development of our constituents, nor have we closed our sights to the cultivation of our cultural programs. One of the more potent extension service of our College is the presence of our eminent cultural groups that propagate the beauty and significance of our culture and arts through the Liping Tagalog Folkloric Group.

Among the College's quest for recognition abroad, on the other hand, is its support of external networks and linkages. One is in the form of mutual cooperation and exchanges such as the agreement between China's Northwest Agriculture and Forestry University, Ministry of Education – Timor Leste, Agro-studies Israel among others. Cooperative undertakings with partners have also opened doors for immersion activities, studies and researches of mutual interest. Aside from securing continued scholarship grants and funding sponsorships from long-standing partners, new sources have been tapped. Partnerships with civic and government agencies have also been forged particularly to enhance capabilities for risk and disaster reduction and management.

Administrative support is focused on enhancing systems and optimizing resources to intensify work efficiency. Process and methods simplification in the Registrar's and Admissions' offices have facilitated the speedy delivery of services. On resource allocation, the College has already secured funds for the construction of the Information and Communication Technology Center (ICTC) building that will be used for an extensive contribution to the educational, research, and economic development of our country.
